Ambulance volunteers are important to regional communities in South Australia

Around 1500 volunteers make up a network of over 80 country volunteer ambulance teams across the state. Without their efforts many country communities would not have a local ambulance station. Volunteers provide professional emergency ambulance and patient transfer services within their communities.

If you've ever thought about stepping up and becoming an SA Ambulance Service volunteer, now is the time.

You will learn what to do in a medical emergency so you can help a loved one or a colleague.

Whatever stage you are in life, SA Ambulance Service is ready for you.

Retirement is no barrier to volunteering for SA Ambulance Service. In fact your knowledge and experience will be welcomed. It's easier than you think.

With your kids growing up, this is an opportunity for you to use your extra time to do something for yourself.

And if you are a shift worker or a fly in fly out worker this is a way you can contribute to your local community.

All training is free and rosters are designed around your existing commitments. There are a range of roles to choose from and you'll care mainly for people with pre-existing medical conditions. Take the first step and find out more today!

The new training program is designed to let you progress in a timeframe that suits you. There are three roles, Ambulance Assist, Ambulance Responder and Ambulance Officer.

Ambulance Assist volunteers work as the second member of a crew alongside a higher level officer. As you become more comfortable, you can progress through the training to become an Ambulance Responder or Ambulance Officer.

You will need to:

- hold a current driver's licence
- meet medical requirements
- complete a criminal and relevant history screening check.

So, if you're looking for a healthy dose of personal fulfilment SA Ambulance Service is ready for you.

Take the Step today and become an SA Ambulance Service volunteer.
